

MORNING APPEAL

Official Paper of Ormsby County.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8

Still at Large.

The report that Barth was seen on Monday night crossing the road a mile south of Carson, is not believed. He is too sharp a man to cross a public highway in the daytime when anyone was passing.

He has many friends in this vicinity who are helping him and furnishing him with supplies, and he is probably not far from Carson having a good rest and taking things easy.

Gardner Wins.

The case of Gardner vs. Brown Bros. to recover from an attachment placed on some cattle by Brown Bros. to recover for a debt due from James Gardner, son of the plaintiff, was decided yesterday in favor of Gardner. The jury fixed the value of the stock at $30 a head and the amount of judgment was $2,250.

A Washington special says that Secretary Carlisle has concluded to coin the senioreage of silver into dollars. The senioreage in the Treasury amounts to $51,000,000.

From the appearance of things in the Senate it is a pretty safe bet that silver will be slaughtered there about the way it was in the House. After this is done the country will wake up.

The Belmont Courier says: "Overproduction is what ails us." So says John Sherman. The most of us with empty stomachs and bare footed, halfstarved children, can't see why we are not permitted to have a little of the surplus.

Jane, the Queen of Comedies.

On the 15th comes Jane, an English comedy, which, under Chas. Frohman's direction, has had a successful career throughout the country. The humor of the play is so bright, and the complications so amusing, that one can see it a dozen times without losing interest. The company is an excellent one, and includes Miss Jennie Yeamans, Adolph Jackson, Joseph Allen, Alfred Fisher, Frances Stevens, Schnitz Edwards, Master Joe Totten, Maggie Holloway Fisher, Miss Carrie Reynolds and others.

Court Matters.

In the Supreme Court yesterday, the judgment of the lower court in the case of Todd vs. Wells Fargo & Co., was sustained. The case of Colquhoun vs. the same company was taken under advisement.

In the West End Mining Co. vs. Tinney, argument was continued till today.

In the District Court the evidence is all in in the case of Ida L. Gardner vs. Zudoc Pierce, and counsel given ten days to file additional briefs.

THE BYAY CASE.

Judge Rising Decides in Favor of the Recorder.

Yesterday the case of Bray vs. the County of Ormsby was decided by Judge Rising in favor of the county.

Commissioner Bray did some work on Gardner's road and presented his bill for $30. The Board refused to allow the bill, and County Recorder Ellis, acting under instructions of District Attorney McGowan, declined to issue the warrant, but returned the bill to the Board of Commissioners, who again declined to allow it. Bray brought suit to compel Recorder Ellis to issue the warrant.

His attorneys, Coffin and Summerfield, asked for a writ of mandate from Judge Cheney, who was then on the bench in the absence of Judge Rising.

Cheney declined to issue the writ, on the grounds that it was not the proper way to bring suit, but in passing on the case practically decided the question at issue.

The suit was then brought in the Justice Court and Judge Hawthorne decided for the plaintiff.

District Attorney McGowan then appealed it to the District Court and yesterday Judge Rising decided as follows:

"In the case of Bray against Ormsby County to recover the sum of $30 for hauling gravel, to repair a road, it is shown that the plaintiff is a County Commissioner of this county, and objection is made that the bill for services rendered should not be paid for the reason that a law of 1889, of this State prohibits a county commissioner from contracting or participating in any contract with the county. The law is quite certain and definite and is absolutely prohibitory in its nature, and a commissioner cannot under the act participate in any business wherein the county is concerned. In a case of extreme emergency or inconvenience a commissioner may furnish supplies under the amount of $30 and while I believe that Mr. Bray rendered the services in good faith and as economically as anyone else could have done, still the law prohibited him from doing so and he cannot receive any pay for it. If it were permitted for the commissioners to render any service for a county, for compensation, under this law, any commissioner could render all the services for the county where the amount was less than $100, under the construction placed on this act by counsel for plaintiff. Judgment for defendant with costs."

REFUSE TO REDUCE.

The Comstock Miners Insist on $4 a Day.

A Virginia dispatch says: The wage question, which has been under consideration for the past month, is not yet settled. But the miners and mechanics will not accept the twenty-five per cent reduction asked by the mining management. The committees from the Virginia and Gold Hill Miners' Unions and Mechanics' Union of Storey county met Tuesday night and formulated a reply to the document submitted to the Unions early in August by Charles H. Fisk and other mining presidents. The reply framed stated that the reduction would not be acceded to. A conference with the mine superintendents on the question is asked for, in accordance with a former agreement entered into by the Miners' Unions. A reply will be sent to San Francisco to-night by the committees without submission to the various Unions.

Representatives of the railroad, water, wood, milling, mining and other corporations, at a recent meeting here, drafted a document which has been mailed to the different Unions, asking for a conference with the miners and mechanics on the labor question, and it will come before the several Unions at the next meeting.

The action of the laboring classes on the wage question is universally upheld by the general population. The miners and mechanics' wages cut a small figure in operating the mining properties. The reduction asked is too great. Every laborer is worthy of his hire, at least so think the laboring classes of the Comstock.

W. I. Mitchell the new pastor of the Methodist church arrived here on Wednesday but yesterday received a dispatch announcing the death of Mr. A. B. Elliman Superintendent of the Nevada Central R. R. and he has gone to Battle Mountain to attend the funeral. Rev. King will officiate in this city on Sunday.

ALBERT JAQUA MISSING

His Wife in San Francisco Hunting Him.

The Examiner of yesterday contains the following:

Mrs. Albert Jaqua, a young woman from Virginia City, Nevada, is in San Francisco on a search for her husband, who up to the time of his disappearance was a railroad mail clerk on the route extending from this city through Nevada. With her she has a six-month-old child. All her money has been used up hunting for the man who deserted her, and now she is penniless in the lodging-house at 142 Seventh street.

Mrs. Jaqua says that in 1888 she came to this city from New York and here she met the man who became her husband. He was then a clerk at the Golden Rule Bazar. In November of that year they were married. Three months later Jaqua obtained his position as mail clerk at a salary of $90 a month and subsequently he and his wife removed to Dayton, Nevada, where the man's mother resides.

In 1891, after a short visit in this city, the family went to live at Virginia City, where they remained until the husband's disappearance, and where two of her children died.

One morning about two months ago Jaqua left home in Virginia ostensibly to go to work. There was nothing unusual in his action, and the woman says there had been no trouble of any kind, but the husband did not return. A few weeks ago, hearing that Jaqua was in this city, she sold her furniture to raise money enough to pay care fare and come here. She proceeded to 142 Seventh street, where she had become acquainted during her former residence, and there she obtained a room without advance payment. Only $2.50 of her money was left, but for three days' work at housecleaning she received $3, and she has thus far managed to support herself.

No clew to the husband could be obtained, and quickly the woman gave up the inquiry for him and began searching for work. She says that she tried to have the infant boy taken into a day home to increase her chances of getting employment, but the managers refused to receive it as it could not be fed by hand.

The people at the lodging-house say that they knew the woman when she lived here before, and that she was then deeply interested in the work of some Sunday school. They believe her story and they assert that she will work if she can find a situation.

The facts of the above case are that Jaqua was in town a few days ago. He claims that he was divorced from his wife about a year ago and paid her $250 alimony.
